The Boy and the Filberts

Once upon a time, a boy put his hand into a jar full of filberts (hazelnuts). He grabbed as many as he could hold, but when he tried to take his hand out, he found that he couldn't. The boy began to cry, and he called for his father to come and help him.

The father said to the boy, "If you want to get your hand out of the jar, you must let go of the filberts."

The boy didn't want to let go of the filberts because he was greedy, but eventually, he realized that he couldn't get his hand out unless he let go of them. He opened his hand and the filberts fell to the ground. The boy was then able to take his hand out of the jar.
